YOUR STAND.

At eight, I sold lemonade to the customers who were already at my parents' yard sale. Now plan a stand of your own, without leaving the room. Close your eyes and picture a busy place in your city that you know well: a market, outside an exam hall, a taxi or bus stand. Imagine standing there from morning to night. Who comes? What do they need? Then answer every part from memory.

NAMES _____ GROUP _____

OUR PLACE _____ WHAT WE SELL _____

	PART OF THE BUSINESS	THE QUESTION IT ANSWERS	YOUR STAND
01	OPPORTUNITY	Where is the unmet need?
02	CUSTOMER	Who exactly is it for?
03	LOCATION	Where will you sell?
04	MATERIALS AND INVENTORY	What do you need, and how much?
05	LOGISTICS	How do things get where they need to be?
06	OPERATIONS	What is the daily routine?
07	■ PRICING	What will you charge, and how?
08	■ PROFIT MARGIN	What is left after costs? Name the cost of one item.
09	MARKETING	How do people find out?
10	SALES STRATEGY	How do you turn interest into a yes?
11	■ BULK DISCOUNTS AND FREEBIES	Can a deal sell more?
12	CASH HANDLING	How is money kept safe and counted?
13	■ MAKING CHANGE	Can you take the money customers have?
14	ACCOUNTING	Did you actually make money?
15	RETURNS AND COMPLAINTS	What if a customer is unhappy?
16	RISK	What could go wrong?
17	RULES AND PERMISSION	Who could say no?
18	PARTNERS	Who helps, and what do they get?
19	CHANGE	What will you do differently next time?

■ Must name: a price, a cost per item, a way to make change and one deal (a bulk price or a freebie).

PAUSE AND GUESS

Which part of the business would an eight-year-old most likely forget? What happens on the day it goes wrong?

_____

_____

Source: Sternberg (2026), Part 1 (the table) and Part 5 (the exercise). Full reference on page 2.

EVERY PART.

When a business is in trouble, the cause is almost always one part of the business that nobody was watching. The 19 parts fall into six jobs that every business does.

FIND IT
Opportunity
Customer
Location

MAKE IT
Materials and inventory
Logistics
Operations

SELL IT
Pricing
Marketing
Sales strategy
Bulk discounts and freebies

COUNT THE MONEY
Profit margin
Cash handling
Making change
Accounting

PROTECT IT
Returns and complaints
Risk
Rules and permission
Partners

CHANGE IT
Change

FOR YOUR FINAL PROJECT

START YOUR BUSINESS PLAN TODAY.

Your final presentation in Week 16 must answer all 19 parts for your own business. Begin with these three questions.

1. Where are your future customers already gathered? Name the place and the time of day.

2. Which part of the business will be hardest for you, and why?

3. What would one small, cheap test of your idea look like, with an answer on the same day?

BACK TO THE WORD

Write your definition of entrepreneurship again, after today's class.

BEFORE SESSION 02

1. Read Part 1 of the book on starvechaos.com.
2. Write down three problems you saw in your city this week. Keep them on your phone and bring them to class. Start here:

Reference: Sternberg, M. (2026). Hunger, curiosity & chaos: 101 ways entrepreneurs think. Son of a Botanist Productions. https://starvechaos.com